Mountain View Solar selected for project

Submitted to The Dominion Post

MORGANTOWN — The North Central West Virginia Solar Co-op has selected Mountain View Solar to install solar panels for the 25-member group.

Co-op members selected Mountain View Solar through a competitive bidding process. The group will hold a public information session at 5:30 p.m. Oct. 27 at the Morgantown Public Library to educate the community about solar and the co-op process.

Co-op members selected Mountain View Solar because of its experience and competitive pricing.

"I am impressed with the experience and reputation of Mountain View Solar," said James McGraw, a co-op member. "As an ecologist by profession, I cannot wait to start harvesting clean energy from the sun on the roof of my new home."

The co-op is open to new members until Dec. 12. North central West Virginia residents interested in joining the co-op can sign up at wvsun.org/solar-coops/north-central-wv.
